ORAL JUDGEMENT

The learned counsel for the petitioner states that the letters written to the petitioner have returned undelivered and the last letter sent by registered post has come back with an endorsement that the petitioner is not to be found. He also states that on inquiry from the local advocate, it has been reported that the petitioner had died long back and the rented premises have also fallen down and the petitioner had handed over possession of the rented premises to the respondent no.1 by way of settlement. In view of this, the revision application is disposed of with a liberty to revive it in case of necessity. Rule discharged. Interim relief stands vacated.
